-Lilly Bell. aged 8 years, daughter of Mr. Judkins Batchelder of this place, died suddenly about 12 o'clock, Tuesday night. We understand from medical men that the disease was not cerebro spinal meningitis, as has been currently reported, but a rapid congestion at the base of the brain, simulating apoplexy. The cause is obscure, but it is probable that some injury was suffered by a fall from a sled during the forenoon of the day of the child's death.

TRUE STORY.

A gentleman from Boston in visiting his friend who owns a nice, well-stocked farm in our CLOUR at Wholesale or Retail, of First neighborhood, was invited to look over the premises; and after examining the nice fat hogs in their roomy sty, the sleek looking cows with their bags of gold, the beautiful horses, exen and other stock, they came to the sheep pasture, ADIES', MISSES' AND CHILDREN'S where was a nice flock of about 500 sheep, among them a splendid buck valued at a thousand dollars. Said he, How warm they must be, how soft and comfortable their fleeces look. Yes, said the farmer they are that, but after your long walk out here in the fields, I rather guess you will think that the lounge you probably noticed in our sitting-room is soft and comfortable. I bought it of CASSINO, on St. Johnsbury Plain, a few months since, and I think that that LOUNGE and the SPRING MATTRESSES, with which I have just furnished my house, to be about the
